

Tracey O'Halloran

Tracey O'Halloran has been involved in the international education industry through AEAS for over 30 years. She is a registered psychologist in Australia, a Member of the Australian Psychological Society (MAPS) and holds a Graduate Diploma in Adolescent and Child Psychology from the University of Melbourne and a Bachelor of Arts and a Bachelor of Social Work, both from Monash University.

Before moving to AEAS in a full-time capacity, Tracey had an extensive career working for the Victorian government in health and human services policy and practice positions and in providing consulting and advisory services for the Australian and state governments and community service organisations during five years as an Associate Director at KPMG. Tracey became Managing Director at AEAS in 2009, and over the past 15 years, has focused on business development and growth.

Her experience in and knowledge of the international school sector is unrivalled, which is a key reason so many schools trust AEAS to support their international student programs and strategy.
