Speaker Bio:

Director of International
Students, Rosehill College,
Auckland

Topic -
Short Term Group
Programmes

Originally from Northern Ireland, I established my career in the support and care of international students at the London School of Economics in 1992. I moved to New Zealand in 2000.

I have worked at High schools in Auckland for over 14 years as International Director. I am currently at Rosehill College for the last four years as the Director of International Students, I have coordinated the international strategy for marketing, recruitment, enrolment and pastoral care.

Previously I worked at the University of Auckland - International Department for 5 years, firstly as International Admissions Manager, responsible for the recruitment and enrolment of international students. Then as the Associate Director, International Student Support, managing the international student support team.

I have completed the Global Competence Certificate program which gave me more skills to use in my daily life, particularly at work. Developing cultural competence in all results in an ability to understand, communicate with, and effectively interact with people across cultures.

For me it is critical that the wellbeing and integration of students be a priority over economics. Over the last four years has taught us how important it is to look after the students with the highest level of care and support
